Automate the transmission of your reports

Memo is a powerful communication tool. It will allow you to email any file(s) to a specific list of recipients. All this according to a predetermined schedule (weekday and time).

Of course, you will be able to make several different sending tasks, each containing different files and recipients.

If you have the Maitre'D point of sale software, developed for the restaurant industry, the system can generate one or more of their reports to be received automatically according to the schedule. For example, you could decide to send the consolidated sales report every day to the managers and the labor and tip declaration report once a week to your payroll department.

There is even an option to print these documents and pick them up when you arrive at your business.
