Stop screaming

The NURO app allows you to alert your customers from a screen when their turn has come.

Intended for take-out restaurants, the app will display order numbers that are ready to be retrieved on one or more screens strategically installed inside and/or outside the restaurant.

Works under Windows and operates from a numeric keypad.

When the order is ready, the employee will enter the number on the numeric keypad and press the "ENTER" key, the number will appear on the screen and may also beep to draw customers' attention to the screens.

If a customer is late in picking up their order, the employee will be able to make a combination of keys from the keyboard to flash the number on the screen to catch the customer's eye.

When the screen is not used to advise customers, the application will go into ad mode and will display the images of your choice one after the other, depending on the interval you selected.
